RAC calls for better signs on busway

BY CARL MUNGAZI

carlmungazi@lutononsunday.co.uk

BETTER signage is needed to prevent drivers new to the town from accidentally driving on the recently opened busway, according to the RAC.

The breakdown service, which has had to pick up two of its members from the Luton Dunstable Busway, said more needed to be done to 'prevent visitors from accidentally straying on to it'.

In recent weeks a number of cars have been spotted driving on the busway tracks via the entrance near the junction of Mill Street and Guildford Street whilst other motorists have been driving into the bus lane on Station Road.

The RAC said one of their patrollers has picked up two drivers who had been visiting the area and had damaged their cars.

One was a man following his sat-nav who damaged his car's suspension. The second was a woman who burst a tyre after missing a sign for the busway.

RAC spokesman Simon Williams said: "While locals clearly know the busway is not part of the road network, it appears that even more needs to be done to prevent visitors from accidentally straying on to it.

"We know that motorists don't set out to make mistakes like this which would indicate that signage, road markings and fences need to be improved to prevent further occurrences."

Luton council said that 'relying on sat-navs is simply no excuse' and added that it had notified one satellite navigation maker that Station Road was no longer a road.

A council spokesman said: "The signage is to Government-approved standards and in our view is entirely appropriate as it strikes the right balance between informing drivers of the regulations and not over cluttering the street scene.

"As there are clear 'Bus only' and 'No entry' signs, road markings and car trap warnings, there is absolutely no excuse for any motorist driving with due care and attention to proceed onto the busway."

He added: "Relying on sat-navs is simply no excuse. As anyone who has used a sat-nav knows they are intended as a guide only and do not remove responsibility from the driver to follow the highway code and local signage.

"We have no control over the accuracy of individual sat-nav systems and this is a matter for those companies alone although we have notified one company that Station Road is no longer a road."

Driving on the busway is illegal and can lead to the legal action resulting in a criminal record and a fine of up to £1,000.

On Friday, Councillor Dave Taylor said the council was waiting for things to 'bed down' but would take action if drivers kept on using the busway.

He said: "The sat-nav is only intended to guide you - it's not got its hand on the steering wheel.

"We are not penalising anyone at the moment because we want it to bed down but if it persists then we will have to take action."

In an unrelated incident this week on Wednesday, a car driving along Hatters Way crashed through a fence and ended up on the bus tracks.

Legal expert to look at airport expansion plan

BY CARL MUNGAZI
carl.mungazi@lutononsunday.co.uk

AN INDEPENDENT barrister has been asked to examine plans to expand Luton Airport.

Luton council said it made the move in response to a request from a Hertfordshire county councillor.

A decision on plans to increase passenger capacity at the airport from 12 million to 18 million passengers a year was due to have been taken on November 21 but it was deferred to a later date.

The proposals by the airport's operating company London Luton Airport Operations Ltd (LLAOL) have received criticism from politicians and officials in neighbouring authorities such as Harpenden and St Albans.

As the council owns the airport and is also the planning authority, critics have questioned the impartiality of any decision on the plans.

Luton council said it would be asking John Steel, an aviation specialist planning QC, to conduct a full independent review.

A council spokesman said: "This decision was taken to meet a request from the Cabinet Member for Community Safety and Planning at Hertfordshire County Council, received on 18

The airport wants to increase capacity from 12m to 18m passengers a year

November, to provide a second and impartial legal opinion on all the work undertaken in respect of the airport's capacity and the provisions of the Planning Act 2008.

"Whilst the delay is regrettable, Luton Borough Council has therefore appointed John Steel, an aviation specialist planning QC, and has additionally used this opportunity to ask Mr Steel to conduct a full independent review of the application."

The spokesman also added that the authority had been given government direction not to grant planning permission without specific authorisation from the Secretary of State of Communities and Local Government.

A spokeswoman for Luton Airport said: "We are confident that Luton Borough Council will take the appropriate steps to ensure our application to develop the airport will be appropriately scrutinised and determined."

Earlier this week the £394.4m contract to run the airport was acquired by Spanish air giant AENA and investors Ardian after being sold by Abertis.

Support Keech's '12 Days of Christmas' appeal

KEECH Hospice Care is calling on local businesses, community groups and residents to help support their 12 Days of Christmas campaign.

The charity has revealed it will cost around £144,000 to support adults, children and their families over 12 days this December, so Keech is calling on local people to help raise money during this winter period to help make its Christmas wish come true of being there for all those that need its services.

To do this, Keech has created a special calendar full of fun festive fundraising ideas to help raise money for the cause.

From holding a Christmas dress down day, to organising a seasonal quiz where everyone donates to take part, it is hoped that the challenges will help both to raise funds and increase awareness about the charity.

Laura Ansell, Corporate Fundraiser at Keech Hospice Care, said: "This year we have come up with the 12 Days of Christmas campaign where we have produced your very own 12

Days of Christmas calendar.

"We are asking local businesses and community groups to pin it to their notice boards and select their Christmas challenge."

"We need your support now more than ever."

"This Christmas please help us put a smile on our children's faces and help support them and their families through the devastation of having a sick child."

WOMAN SMOTHERED BY BURGLARS

BURGLARS smothered a woman with a pillow and tied her wrists while they searched her Luton property for gold.

The incident happened in Stonegate Road at around 12.50am on Friday morning when offenders forced entry to the home through the back door.

A large quantity of Asian gold was taken during the incident and the offenders left the scene.

The first man is described as possibly African, 6ft tall, approximately 32 years-old and wearing black clothing. There is no further description available of the second offender.

Anyone with information is urged to call Bedfordshire Police on 101 or text information to 07786 200011.

Alternatively, contact the independent charity Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

CADDINGTON BY-ELECTION RESULT

IT has been revealed that the winner of the by-election in Caddington ward is conservative candidate Kevin Collins with 738 votes.

Independent candidate Christine Smith came second with 560 votes, while Labour candidate Ian Guy Lowery came third with 209 votes.

The turnout was 23.92 per cent out of a total electorate of 7,817.

The by-election followed the resignation of Councillor Ruth Gammons from the seat on Central Bedfordshire Council.

WINTER ROAD PLANS REVEALED

AN authority has launched a video to help residents understand how they tackle winter weather and roads.

The short film, which has been created by Central Bedfordshire Council and can be seen at www.youtube.com/centralbedfordshire, has been created to explain the 'big three' for winter - gritting, potholes and streetlights.

Councillor Brian Spurr said: "We've been out gritting a few times already, but we know that not everyone understands how we work out when to grit, or which potholes need to be filled first."

"This short video that we've produced explains our approach to keeping people on the move."

Parking warning signs will go promises store

BY CARL MUNGAZI

carl.mungazi@lutononsunday.co.uk

SIGNS warning drivers they would be fined for using a supermarket car park without shopping there were put up in error and will be removed, according to the store.

Aldi, in Church Street, Dunstable, said the notices warning of £70 fines had been mistakenly put up by its parking contractor ParkingEye and would be removed 'at the earliest opportunity'.

When the store, which opened in 2007, first applied for planning permission from Central Bedfordshire Council, it was given the condition that it had to offer free short-term car parking to both store customers and non-customers.

However, signs have appeared stating that parking was only free for people using the store. Customers were also told if they spent more than 40 minutes in-store they had to enter their registration vehicle number at a terminal inside the shop.

Anyone who failed to comply with either condition was told they would be liable to receive a £70 fine.

Councillor Nigel Young, the executive member for Strategic Development and Economic Regeneration at Central Beds council, said: "We are aware of the problem and we are in discussions with Aldi to address this issue."

"The car park should be operating in accordance with the obligations in the planning agreement which require provision for short stay car parking for visitors to the town centre. In the spirit of goodwill we would hope that the store would reimburse any individuals who have been inappropriately issued with a ticket."

An Aldi spokesperson said: "Parking is available free of charge at our Dunstable store for anybody shopping either at Aldi or in the town centre."

"In line with the agreements in place for the site, we have introduced a limit of 90 minutes free parking to ensure that spaces are always available for our shoppers."

He added: "The signs were put up in error by the parking contractor and they will be taken down at the earliest opportunity."

Aaron is next big thing in Hollyoaks

A LUTON-BORN actor has been announced as the latest star to join the cast of popular soap Hollyoaks.

Aaron Fontaine (pictured), will reprise the role of Sonny Valentine, previously played by actor Devon Anderson between 2006 and 2007 in the Chester-based programme.

The 25-year-old who has appeared in theatre productions, including comedy-an Angie Le Mar's Do You Know Where Your Daughter Is?, announced the news about his first television role via his Twitter page this week.

"I give thanks to the Highest! #Hardwork and #Prayer," he wrote with a link to an official announcement.

It is expected that the first scenes with Aaron will be aired in January.

Safety concerns over road changes

BY LAUREN ARCHELL
lauren.archell@lutononsunday.co.uk

RESIDENTS in Dunstable have started a petition calling for Court Drive to be returned to its former state, after saying that they fear 'improvements' to the area will result in someone being killed.

Work was undertaken by Central Bedfordshire Council this summer to redevelop the road into a 'shared space' for pedestrians and motorists, by 'enhancing the general street environment and reducing the amount of visual clutter and obstacles'.

However, the initial £1.2m improvements have left both motorists and pedestrians confused, and in September the authority made further changes – including the addition of knee-high fencing 'to stop drivers from going on to the landscaped verges'.

But these alterations have done little to allay the fears of residents, who have again expressed their concerns about the layout of the roads.

A petition, which currently has 82 signatures, has been

CONFUSION: Court Drive has been changed into a 'shared space' started which calls on the authority to bring back the controlled pedestrian crossings which had been in place prior to the changes.

It adds: "We believe the current system to be highly dangerous for both pedestrians and motorists."

"We are seriously concerned that fatalities will occur unless controlled, safe, pedestrian crossings are re-instated as a matter of considerable urgency."

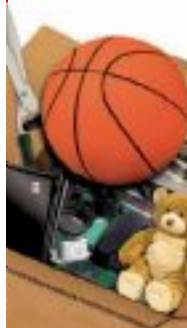

In response to concerns, Councillor Budge Wells said: "Taking on board people's comments, we've already made changes to Court Drive to help drivers and pedestrians, including putting in additional signage and installed planters on traffic islands to stop people driving over them."

"We will be carrying out further safety audits to check for any issues that we need to address."

Drink driver is disqualified

A MOTORIST involved in a four-vehicle motorway accident was more than two and a half times the drink-drive limit following a drinking session the previous evening.

Depressed Andres Espasandin, 38, of Anstee Road, Luton, resorted to alcohol after his home had been burgled, magistrates in Nuneaton heard.

Espasandin, an engineer for Network Rail, pleaded guilty to driving a Mazda 3 on November 8 with excess alcohol.

Magistrates sentenced Espasandin to a 12-month community order, with 150 hours unpaid work.

He was also disqualified from driving for 23 months.

Espasandin was driving to Liverpool when he was involved in a crash on the M6. Prosecutor Colin Heald said: "He said he had consumed two bottles of wine on the evening before."

Mitigating, solicitor John Weston, said: "My client has been suffering from depression for some four years. He had been burgled the night before. The house had been vandalised."

Mr Weston added: "Since moving to Luton he had been subject to a violent robbery. His reaction was to drink these bottles of wine."

"He thought he would be ok to drive but, clearly, he was not."

When the Committee of Biscot Parish Church Hall decided to replace their draughty windows and doors they chose Kingsbourne Windows.

Mrs Gookey, the Church Hall manager explains.

"We found Kingsbourne could match the design of the original windows and doors with high security locking systems. Now completed, our Church Hall is secure and with A rated energy efficient products we would recommend Kingsbourne to all our friends".

TV slot for report on gang violence

BY CARL MUNGAZI
carl.mungazi@lutononsunday.co.uk

RESEARCH carried out by a Luton-based academic into sexual violence has featured in a television programme.

On Thursday, the BBC Crimewatch show discussed a report by the Office of the Children's Commissioner about sexual violence among children and young people.

It was published this week alongside work done by the University of Bedfordshire.

In its own research, the university found significant sexual victimisation within gang environments, and that for some children and young people, sexual violence – including rape – was seen as part of everyday life.

A 15-year-old girl told researchers: "He feels in control of the streets anyway... so he'll want things to go his way, so he won't be thinking 'this is rape', when it actually is."

The work was carried out between 2011 and 2013 across six sites in England with 188 young people, half of whom were under-18, and 76 professionals. Nearly half the young people interviewed said victims of sexual violence 'deserved it' or 'asked for it'.

Luton-based professor Jenny Pearce, director of the research, said early intervention in schools was needed to combat the problem. She said the research showed that 'when we think of gang violence, we now must not only think of guns and knives, but sex and the sexual exploitation of young women too.'

The UKCCA will be responsible for the carnival in 2014

Carnival date for 2014 is released

The date for next year's carnival has been announced by the UK Centre for Carnival Arts (UKCCA).

It will be held on Sunday, May 25, and will be organised by the UKCCA for the first time.

Lisa Marie Trump, the organisation's chief executive, said: "We want to celebrate how Luton's carnival showcases that spirit of participation and the creative talent of Luton's people."

She added that other residents were helping in the search and urged anyone with information to call her on 07939 321070.

Drunken prank led to a stabbing attack

BY JULIA SUTTON

editor@lutononsunday.co.uk

A MAN stabbed his best friend seven times in an uncharacteristic outburst of violence after a drunken prank, a court has heard.

Thomas Furr, 25, of Birchen Grove, Luton, pleaded guilty at Luton Crown Court on Friday to assaulting Andrew Ayres, causing actual bodily harm on Friday, November 1 this year.

Judge David Farrell QC gave him a twelve month prison sentence suspended for two years with an alcohol treatment requirement and a six months curfew. He was also ordered to pay £535 prosecution costs.

The incident happened after a drunken prank in which Furr, a customer services agent in the motor trade, was covered in shaving foam.

He armed himself with a small kitchen knife and stabbed his best friend seven times. Six of the wounds barely cut the skin and the seventh in his arm was small.

When police arrived the victim did not want to make a complaint and other friends said the attacker had left the house, but Furr came forward and said to police: "It's me you are looking for. I lost my temper, he is my best mate."

Judge Farrell said Furr's sensible decision to give himself up saved him from going immediately to prison.

But he said Furr would spend every night for the next six months at home on a curfew so that he could not go out drinking.

There is a logic to the spare room subsidy

SIR – Your front page article on spare room subsidy gave some facts and missed some others which should be mentioned.

For people faced with the options of downsizing or paying an increase in rent these numbers are irrelevant. It is a huge change and no one under estimates the upheaval faced by people who must find the extra money, or move to smaller accommodation that meets their current needs. And we know that finding that accommodation is very difficult.

Under Labour the housing benefit bill almost doubled to £20 billion and the number of people on social housing waiting lists nearly doubled. Ed Milliband does not want to sustain the subsidy, so would he just leave people on waiting lists?

The spare room subsidy applies only to people in social housing, bringing them into line with others whose accommodation, though it may be paid for by the council, is provided by private landlords.

POLICY: Figures show over 1,100 households in Luton have been affected by the reform

People who rent from private landlords have always had to pay for the rooms they rent.

People in social housing were dealt with differently. If the family grew and moved on, the family house remained even though the parent(s) left behind might only need one bedroom.

But other families live in short term accommodation because of the shortage of housing.

Why should people in private rented accommodation pay for their rooms (via Housing Benefit) whilst those in social housing did not.

And why should the people in Luton who are in temporary accommodation, or bed and breakfast whilst others have houses or flats with spare rooms?

It is not difficult to see where the logic comes from – or the desire to bring fairness into the system, for all. It is not an easy policy to introduce but because of the levels of spending and need left by the last Labour government, changes have had to be introduced.

The government has given funding to local councils to alleviate need during the changes: Discretionary Housing Payments for 2013/14 (£180 million) and 2014/15 (£125 million) to support vulnerable claimants with the transition.

There are also special arrangements for people with one or more disabled children where a child cannot share a room.

No one suggests this is an easy policy.

People in private rented accommodation receiving housing benefit may see the fairness in the change.

For people in social rented accommodation, times are hard and change is always difficult to manage. But we all recognise the need to live within our means.

Mrs M R Simons,
Fairford Avenue, Luton

'Public are the police'

SIR – In answer to Mr Smith's letter (LoS, 24/11/13) following the article about my first year in office, let me clarify for him. The role of Police and Crime Commissioner is new.

The former unelected Police Authorities were replaced by directly elected Police Commissioners. We are responsible for the governance of the police, such as setting priorities and the budget. This is the definition of a political role.

On Mr Smith's second point, police numbers across the county have fallen because of the governments 20 per cent cut to the police budget.

Police officers cannot be made redundant so the fall in numbers has been achieved by not replacing police officers who retire or leave the service. However I am now able to recruit again after a period of frozen recruitment, although we won't be able to replace all officers who leave, so overall police strength will still fall because of the Tory Lib Dem government cuts.

Nevertheless the recruitment of 80 PCs is an opportunity to increase the diversity of our police force so it better reflects the communities it is serving. Sir Robert Peel, the founder of modern policing and a Conservative Home Secretary, set out the principle that: "The police are the public and the public are the police". It is this principle that I as the Police and Crime Commissioner am following.

Ollly Martins,
Bedfordshire Police and Crime Commissioner

Pool is for Lutonians

SIR – It's all coming out now. Luton Borough Council prostitute out our swimming pool to TV companies and make £80,000 profit.

Then they tell us that they can't afford £30,000 for our firework display. That's not fair.

The swimming pool was supposed to be for Lutonians to keep fit, not for reality TV shows.

Luton Borough Council will always favour nice little earners before the needs of Lutonians.

John Tucker
Bracklesham Gardens, Luton

Well done for awards

SIR – It was great to pick up the paper last week and see all of those who were recognised in the Luton's Best Awards.

With all the doom and gloom around it is easy to forget the number of good people who give up their own time to make our town a better place.

It was great to see so many happy faces and made me feel proud to live in Luton!

Congratulations all!

Review of old clause

SIR – For nearly 140 years, information on animal experiments has been kept secret. But this could soon change as the Government is planning a review of the 'secrecy clause' which prevents it from releasing details of what happens to animals during experiments.

There is overwhelming support for the repeal of this 'secrecy clause', from within parliament, and a number of organizations such as Animal Aid.

The NAVS Week of Action Against Secret Suffering in UK Laboratories runs from Wednesday, November 27 to Tuesday, December 3. Please ask your MP to sign EDM 630 which calls for the repeal of the 'secrecy clause' and respond to a questionnaire on openness by a pro-animal research group.

Please join the NAVS week of action and help lift the lid on secret suffering.

Jan Creamer,
Chief Executive - National Anti-Vivisection Society

Well done John Lewis

SIR – On behalf of over 10 million people in the UK with hearing loss, I would like to publicly thank John Lewis for speedily re-releasing their Christmas television advertisement with subtitles. The original omission has brought to light one of many challenges faced by deaf and hard of hearing people.

Many people with hearing loss can feel isolated at Christmas and while subtitling may seem trivial, Action on Hearing Loss members tell us that words and music, be it carols or lyrics sung by Lilly Allen is one of things they miss most and subtitles allow them to share the experience with family and friends.

Rob Burley, Head of Public Affairs & Campaigns

Your comments on the stories on our website this week:

'Bedroom tax' pledge

trevordl – Every party will say whatever they like to get in. They'll promise the earth and then shaft you all.

How many promises have been broken since Cameron got in.

@LutonEye: Really disappointed to see political spin given front page space in a local paper. Total non story.

Reducing a benefit isn't a 'tax'. 'Bedroom Tax' is a Labour propaganda term. It's a benefit reform.

@AdamSpokes: The term ('bedroom tax') is propaganda, but it is also a fairer reflection of how the outcome affects people. Stick with it I say.

@Bazza_68: The real bedroom tax is the money I have to pay so others can have a free spare bedroom.

New date for carnival

@LutonEye – Good of them to announce it early, so I can plan to not be in town that weekend!

@collyeates – Me too! Once in the last 13 years was more than enough!

@masekwmm – It ain't Notting Hill!

Coca cola truck visit

@VivienneLx – Overly excited for the Coca Cola Lorry #holidaysarecoming

Daily school run is so full of stress

I SPENT the best part of four years travelling up to Staffordshire most working days. Hitting the M1 at around 7:30am and motoring up t'north was a routine that was often a little stressful.

But I have to say, now I am no longer doing that, it was nowhere near as bad as the school run.

Most mornings now, I spend the first half hour trying to get our 10-year-old out of bed, eating some breakfast and dressed so the journey can start.

Despite asking every evening if clothes are organised, if games kit is needed and whether there is any homework to be done, there is always some last minute disaster. This needs signing and a fiver needs handing in today. She can only find one shoe. Did you come home with two? Not sure. You'll have to hop to school. For some reason the other shoe sits in the bathroom.

You'll need a coat. She doesn't like the coat. Too bad. And the hair needs doing. If I may digress and sound a bit sexist at the same time, girls are much worse than boys. Lay out the clothes at the bottom of a boy's bed and he will wake up and climb into them without really being aware of what he is wearing. Not girls. Clothes have to be right, hair has to be right. And we haven't even reached the make-up stage.

Nearly ready, she inspects the pack-up and decides I have given her the wrong crisps. Last week her favourite was cheese and onion, now it is salt and vinegar. So now the journey can begin.

If we are in the car before 8:15, she chooses the radio, which is Radio 1, if not I choose Radio 2. Whoever chooses the other complains that they never play any music, just boring talk. We begin the journey stuck at a junction watching lights change and change.

For the first half mile there are nine sets of traffic lights, with heavy traffic, hampered by buses, who have a slightly different highway code to the rest of us. For them it is manoeuvre, mirror, signal. Up one street there is a pre-school day nursery, where mums in Chelsea tractors stop in the middle of the road, to pull some small waif from its cavernous interior. To be fair to them, which is difficult, if they can park there are traffic wardens who seem to be lurking behind bushes, as they suddenly appear and ticket the unfortunate parent.

We are nearly there, I am calm, the child is calm, the uniform looks smart, the hair is done, the school bags are in the car and full of all the necessary books, games kit, lunch.

'Oh, I forgot, it's mufti today. We'll have to go back.'

HAS a more pernicious piece of legislation ever been created than the Bedroom Tax? Split families, people with disabilities and those on the poverty line are being caught out by having their benefits cut. And councils often do not have the one bedroom accommodation required. Tell us your story, so we can fight this injustice.

Free book service at risk of closure

BY CARL MUNGAZI

carl.mungazi@lutononsunday.co.uk

A SERVICE which has provided free books to children is set to shut down if it doesn't find new sponsors.

The Dolly Parton Imagination Library, which runs nationwide, has sent a free book once a month to kids in the town from the day they are born up until they turn five.

It has operated out of Luton Central Library since 2010 but now faces closure next year if it is unable to find £95,000 for 2014.

Previously it had been sponsored by construction firm Wates but the deal has come to an end. Last year the scheme delivered its 500,000th book in the country to a child in the town.

Natalie Turnbull, the regional director of the Dollywood Foundation UK, said they had received some donations already but needed more in order to have a sustainable future.

She added: "What the children get out of the programme is a home learning environment that's full of quality books which helps

The Imagination Library delivers books to children like Finley Theobald, who received the scheme's 500,000th book in the UK with their social development.

"This is a personal program that they would have had five years of books before going to school. I think it really benefits the brain development in getting books very early in life."

- Anyone interested in sponsoring can contact Ms Turnbull on 07984 346592.

Trio of stores to open at The Mall

BY LAUREN ARCHELL

lauren.archell@lutononsunday.co.uk

THEY say good things come in threes, and that really is true for shoppers this Christmas as three new stores open at The Mall.

Popular fashion store River Island re-opened its doors yesterday to reveal a modern look and a brand new childrenswear department.

Shoe store Deichmann will also be welcoming Luton shoppers from Wednesday, December 4.

Deichmann is famous for offering a wide range of shoes and accessories for men, women and children at great prices.

To complete the trio of new stores, children's toy shop The Entertainer will also be arriving at the Luton shopping centre, with their grand opening happening on Saturday, December 14.

As the fastest growing multi-channel toy retailer in the UK, The Entertainer will be home to a wide range of toys, activities and more for children all year round.

Lavinia Douglass, Marketing Manager at The Mall, Luton said: "We are thrilled to be welcoming these three great stores this winter."

"River Island has been popular with our shoppers for years, and we are sure both Deichmann and The Entertainer will be a huge hit this Christmas too."

- To enter our competition to win £250 of vouchers to spend at The Entertainer, turn to page 35.

Cops target drink drivers this winter

DRIVERS who are found guilty of driving while over the alcohol limit during December could lose their licences before Christmas, police are warning as they step up their patrols this winter.

This comes as the annual month-long drink and drug driving campaign is launched, which aims to inform motorists of the consequences of drinking or taking drugs and then getting behind the wheel.

The initiative, which runs up until Wednesday, January 1, will also allow members of the public to call a confidential dedicated hotline and report drink and drug drivers, while advice and enforcement activity will be passed directly to the public via @roadpoliceBCH on Twitter.

TODAY marks the launch of Bedfordshire Police's annual drink and drug driving campaign. LAUREN ARCHELL learns more

The campaign is being carried out by officers from the Bedfordshire, Cambridgeshire and Hertfordshire forces, which makes it easier for traffic officers to follow suspected drunk drivers across the region as the borders between the three counties cease to exist.

Chief Inspector Richard Hann said: "We are supporting this campaign to raise awareness among drivers that any alcohol can impair your judgement, cause difficulty assessing road conditions and ultimately cause a serious collision. "There is no safe drink drive limit, so if you want to enjoy a drink this Christmas, then make sure you have organised a way to get home, either through a designated non-drinker, public transport or a taxi.

"It is also important to remember that alcohol will stay in your system for a while. It is often unsafe to drive the following morning.

"We are stopping people round the clock, so don't think you'll be able to get away with drink driving because it is the morning and police are not likely to be out and about."

Officers will be carrying out breath tests and, where relevant, Field Impairment Tests to all drivers involved in any road collisions they attend. They will also be on the lookout for any suspicious driving and will stop and check anyone suspected of committing a driving offence.

FACT BOX

- The legal limit for driving is 80mg of alcohol per 100ml of blood
- Drink drivers can face a minimum of 12 months disqualification as well as a fine and/or imprisonment

Charity's cash win will expand service

A BEDFORDSHIRE-based trauma and emotional well-being service for children has won £50,000 in the ITV People's Millions competition.

CHUMS, which receives 1,500 referrals per year, helps young people to share their feelings, gaining valuable support at a difficult time.

In order to help, the charity organises workshops for children and for young people, residential weekends, family days and remembrance services.

Now CHUMS will be able to use the new funds to expand its recreational therapies service, which was successfully trialled in August this year.

The entire process, from applying to being involved with the People's Millions, has taken six months.

Sue Clarke, fundraiser at CHUMS, said: "We applied to Peoples Millions back in May and were told we were on the reserve list in September.

"In October we were told that we had made it onto the final list and only in November could we actually tell anyone!

"So we had just under four weeks to prepare and deliver our campaign which was co-ordinated across our business and personal networks and through social media."

This creative campaign included being invited onto the pitch at Luton Town Football Club to address over 6,000 sports fans about the cause. On Tuesday the vote opened and members of the public were encouraged to vote for CHUMS – and it was later crowned the worthy winner.

Sue added: "The money will allow us to go ahead with providing support to those who can't readily engage in traditional talking therapies and need a more flexible type of support.

"In two days we had already started to make real breakthroughs.

"We have known for a few years that we needed to provide a different kind of support for some children who cannot put into words what is making their lives so difficult, so it is a dream come true that we now have the funding in place to get this service up and running."

Now the charity, based in Wrest Park, Silsoe, will be able to roll out the service.

CHUMS' chief executive Dawn Hewitt said: "Wow, what more can I say than a big thank you to everyone who has helped us to secure this amazing prize. We couldn't have done it without you and the team at CHUMS is just overwhelmed by all the support we've received."

PLEDGE: MP Gavin Shuker with rugby star Ikram Butt

MP backs anti-violence charity

LUTON MP Gavin Shuker has joined former England rugby league star Ikram Butt to show his support for the White Ribbon campaign.

White Ribbon helps ensure men take more responsibility for reducing the level of violence against women. Mr Shuker said "It is important to recognise this is not a women's issue and I want to play a key role in eliminating this problem."

Legal action agreed to fill empty homes

BY LAUREN ARCHELL

lauren.archell@lutononsunday.co.uk

LUTON council has chosen to use its legal powers to purchase three long term vacant properties in the town.

The properties in Atherstone Road, Alesia Road and Bramingham Road have been described as 'a blight on the areas' and have been attracting antisocial behaviour and nuisance to neighbours.

The decision was made by Luton Borough Council's Executive following unsuccessful discussions with the property owners about taking action to bring the homes back into use.

Now they have agreement to use their Compulsory Purchase Order (CPO) powers, housing officers will try one final time to persuade the owners to bring the properties back into occupation.

If they still refuse to cooperate, the legal process will then commence.

Under Section 17 of the Housing Act 1985 councils can to apply for a CPO when other approaches to bringing properties back into occupation have proved fruitless.

Cllr Tom Shaw, Portfolio Holder for housing, said: "We always want to work with landlords who may be struggling to sell or let out their home as we can advise them how they can bring them back to the market."

"However, when they simply refuse to cooperate, as these owners have done, we can and will use our legal powers."

FUNDING: The Funlands Youth Club will open in January

Legacy of 2012 Olympics lives on

STAFF and students from Lealands High School are aiming to continue the Olympic legacy by creating a base for disabled children, their parents and carers.

Thanks to £5,000 funding from 'Get Set', the British Olympic and British Paralympic education programme, the school hopes to open the FunLands Youth Club in January. It will be accessible to young people with varying degrees of disability on Monday evenings.

Prepare kit to beat the cold this winter

BY LAUREN ARCHELL

lauren.archell@lutononsunday.co.uk

RESIDENTS are being advised to prepare a basic 'emergency kit' ahead of the anticipated cold weather this winter.

Bedfordshire and Luton Local Resilience Forum (BLRF) has suggested that families put together a bag of supplies in case severe weather means they are stuck indoors for any length of time.

Forum chairman, Chief

Superintendent Mike Colbourne, said: "If local people are trapped in their homes by severe weather the BLRF is responsible for co-ordinating support but it's useful if people have some supplies to help them cope."

"It's quick and easy to create an emergency kit and store it in a waterproof box or bag somewhere to hand when you need it."

Items in your emergency kit, should include bottled water, a tin opener and non-perishable food, spare medication, a wind up radio, a pocket torch, spare batteries as well as a foil blanket and small first aid kit.

BLRF is now giving local people the chance to win a free Home Emergency Kit that contains the essentials.

To enter the free prize draw just follow @what_would_on Twitter, like facebook.com/whatwouldyoudoif or enter using the website's contact page on the www.blrf.org.uk/home/website.

Entry closes at midnight, February 2, 2014.

Change collected to help typhoon appeal

BY LAUREN ARCHELL

lauren.archell@lutononsunday.co.uk

LOOSE change is mounting up at Barnfield West Academy as students support the Philippines disaster aid appeal.

The Leagrave High Street Academy has been collecting cash following Typhoon Haiyan in early November, which killed more than 5,000 people and left many survivors in desperate situations.

Barnfield West Academy wanted to help as much as possible with fundraising to pay for aid and rescue efforts.

Letters were marked out in the horseshoe area of the outdoor Quad and students were invited to place any loose change they had to fill them.

Students will also hold a GENEROUS: Students have donated their change to help support the Philippines aid appeal in the wake of the devastating Typhoon Haiyan non-uniform day on Friday, November 29, to add to the collection.

Vice Principal Phil Archer said: "A natural disaster must be devastating for everyone affected and our thoughts are with the families having to deal with this situation.

"We are still receiving donations for this very worthy cause to add to the amazing £439.35 that we have already raised. Well done all."

Polished performances as Hunger Games sequel almost catches fire

FILM REVIEW

Hunger Games: Catching Fire (12A)

Directed by Francis Lawrence

IN this week's review, our resident film expert Gavin Miller takes a look at the latest instalment in the Hunger Games series.

THE sequel to last year's box office sensation The Hunger Games impressively builds on solid foundations – without ever really catching fire itself.

With two more sequels to follow – the split-in-half final book Mockingjay – as part of a franchise quadrilogy, Oscar winner Jennifer Lawrence (The Silver Linings Playbook) grows even more impressively into the role of reluctant warrior Katniss Everdeen.

Alongside a strong supporting cast – which this time boasts the likes of Phillip Seymour Hoffman (Oscar winner for Capote), Jeffrey Wright (Casino Royale) and Amanda Plummer (Pulp Fiction) – and a more polished production (helmed by the director of I Am Legend), Lawrence's presence helps elevate this to the next level.

It does take a while to actually reach 'the games' part of the film, with the first half of the film being more methodical than exhilarating, with Katniss and 74th Hunger Games co-winner Peeta Mallark (Josh Hutcherson) becoming targets of the Capitol – primarily President Snow (Donald Sutherland) – as their victor's tour of the districts lights the embers of a rebellion.

But the curveball (minor spoilers ahead) sees Katniss and Peeta literally thrown back into the viper's nest when only past winners of the games can compete for a special seventy-five year celebration – including favourite Finnick (Suffolk-born Brit actor Sam Claflin) and the sexy Johanna (Sucker Punch's Jena Malone) – making this the deadliest Hunger Games yet.

Arguably the actual 'games' part of the movie isn't as shockingly visceral as the first film, and the movie might not quite pan-out as some cinema-goers may expect – but again Lawrence, Hutcherson, Liam Hemsworth, Woody Harrelson, Elizabeth Banks and co all play their part in what is building into an epic series.

It is undoubtedly a classier product than the likes of the Twilight Saga – and deserves plaudits as this simmers nicely towards an exciting finale.

Rating: 4/5

Running Time: 2hrs 25mins

Cast: Jennifer Lawrence, Josh Hutcherson, Liam Hemsworth, Woody Harrelson, Elizabeth

Banks, Phillip Seymour Hoffman, Donald Sutherland, Stanley Tucci, Lenny Kravitz, Sam Claflin, Jena Malone, Jeffrey Wright, Amanda Plummer, Willow Shields, Lynn Cohen, Patrick St Esprit, Paula Malcomson.

New twist for an old favourite

THEATRE

Stopsley Baptist Church
Friday, 7pm

THE Riding Lights Theatre Company will be putting on a show to kick start your Christmas festivities.

Full of fun and high spirits, the highly acclaimed Only Eighty Miles to Christmas will be visiting the town on Friday.

The show, which has been described as a 'joyous cavalcade of a play,' was performed to many audiences on a short tour last Christmas.

Only 80 Miles to Christmas! features Nigel Forde's re-telling of the traditional nativity story and is the latest in a line of warm-hearted Christmas shows taken around the country by this professional theatre company.

It is full of wonderful storytelling, chaos and puppets, and is good viewing for young and old alike.

At the beginning of the story we meet our young carpenter on his own as he pops down to Bethlehem to register for the census.

It should be an easy enough trip with no problems or hiccups but... Mary wants to come too.

Suddenly the journey takes on a new life, full of travel cots and squeaky toys, terrifying traffic wardens and Persian philosophers, not to mention a wildly mischievous camel called Desmond.

What will the young couple do? How will they get their journey back on track?

The performance lasts approximately one hour and is for those aged five and over.

It is suitable for the whole family, and the aim is to make sure each show is full of laughter, excitement and unexpected twists.

Since 1977, Riding Lights Theatre Company has provided vibrant professional theatre for York and far beyond, taking live theatre to a wide range of communities.

Tickets for this production cost £6, with concessions at £5 and £15 for a family of four.

You can book your tickets by calling the box office on 01582 727352.

Alternatively, visit www.ridinglights.org/christmas for a full tour schedule, information and online booking.

ET TU BRABUS?

For most, Brabus is associated with massively powerful Mercedes limousines. Captains of European industry sit in the back and are swept across featureless autobahns at speeds more akin to private aviation than wheeled transport. Fortunately for us, we can now get the Brabus touch on less than Euro commissioner salaries in the form of the Smart fortwo Brabus Xclusive, a citycar with real attitude.

The 102bhp delivered by the Brabus's up-rated 1.0-litre powerplant was felt to be quite enough for the facelifted version and offers a breezy performance gain over the 84bhp offered by the turbo model in the standard range and a huge one over the 61 or 71bhp options served up by more humble Smart fortwos. It's enough to thrust the shoebox sized car to 60mph in a smidgeon under nine seconds, a remarkable three seconds faster than the Brabus version of the first generation fortwo. It also feels surprisingly quick, despite the gearbox remaining a little dull-witted off the mark and is more than enough to give other city motorists the humiliating view of your blunt back end.

That said, there's no way people will mistake the Brabus model for a common or garden Smart variety. A number of body styling features distinguish the Brabus Xclusive version including lovely Brabus alloy wheels, a deeper front spoiler and rear valance, plus a sports exhaust and heat shield. The effect of these styling touches, as applied to the already bolder looking 2012 Smart, is to bring the car even lower to the ground, giving the optical appearance of a rather rapidly moving block. And for the first time and BRABUS Xclusive models are optionally available in white.

Get your brand closer to people's lives

No other medium is as close to people's hearts as Regional Press. Consumers consider it an integral part of their community.

The effectiveness of regional press advertising in driving sales comes down to the simple fact that people prefer to do most of their spending close to where they live.

Consumers' Choice V, a national consumer survey by TNS Media, found that regional press advertising is the most frequently acted upon, with 61% of people responding to it¹.

No wonder brands enjoy a closer relationship with consumers when advertised in this, the most trusted and effective medium of all.
